

HE'LL DO HIS "HONEST BEST."

So Says Commissioner Partridge at the End of the Churchill Trial.

CROSS AGAIN ASSAILED.

Called a "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde" in Real Life by Counsel for the Accused Policeman.

"Gentlemen," said Police Commissioner Partridge to-day, when the seven weeks' trial of Sergt. Churchill ended, "I suppose this closes the trial and you are glad of it. Now I've got to take hold of it and see what I can make out of it. I will do my honest best to arrive at a true and just verdict."

Mr. Sandford, in summing up, said that Sergt. Churchill did some spectacular work in November when he first went into the precinct. "That was when the brass band was working," he declared. "From January until the end of the year, Inspector Cross made his raids the Bowery resorts were a stench in the nostrils of any person who passed."

Inspector Cross was to-day called the Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde of the Police Department during the summing up of Attorney Rosinsky for Sergt. Churchill, accused of neglect of duty.

"If ever there was a Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde in real life," said Rosinsky, pointing an accusing finger at the flushed inspector, "we have an example here—a villain under the old regime, an angel under the new."

Cross grew even redder than before and half rose as if to spring across the table at the lawyer, but a touch on the arm from Assistant District Attorney Sandford induced him to resume his seat and his control of himself.

"Who charges this defendant with neglect of duty?" demanded the lawyer, returning glare for glare with Inspector Cross. "An inspector of police who had the audacity on the stand yesterday to refer to a man who has sent thousands of young women to untimely graves, whose many lives in the Fifteenth Precinct fill hundreds of homes with weeping parents, whose Sullen Hall is notorious from Maine to California, to refer to this man as 'poor old John McGurk'."

"This same poor old John McGurk, against whom this inspector preferred the 'strongest kind of a case,' which resulted in the dismissal of the charges against him! This same poor old John McGurk, against whom a person not suspected with the Police Department succeeded in getting evidence which resulted in his conviction and a fine of $500!"

This referred to the private detectives employed by Churchill to get evidence. "When Diamond was there," went on the merciless pleader, "the Police Department made a single raid. He said of this man who has since been convicted and dismissed from the force: 'He is an excellent officer.'"

"Such was Cross under the old regime, but with the advent of the new, when Churchill was the chief of police, the light of day shined on the man. He suddenly awakened. The glare of the red light hurt his eyes. He told Churchill to see Devery, and when Churchill refused the plot was laid."

"No protest was made until Churchill raided Frank Farrell's pool-room, on the Bowery. Then the Police Department, represented by Frank Farrell standing across the street shaking his fist at a captain of police in the front of his duties and threatening to bring down upon him the wrath of his superiors—Cross and Devery—for the murder of a friend? No! Farrell was the friend of Devery, the friend of Cross."

WEALTHY NEW YORKERS HELD FOR $25,000 JEWEL ROBBERY AT FASHIONABLE HOTEL.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis L. Richman, of New York, Placed Under Arrest at Alexandria Bay After Valuable Necklace and Money Are Missing.

DR. WALTER E. DELABARRE AND HIS WIFE.

WATERTOWN, N. Y., July 3.—Accused of stealing a $25,000 necklace and $427 in money, Louis L. Richman, a wealthy manufacturer and real estate owner, of No. 87 Bowery, New York, and his wife, a handsome and richly gowned woman, were brought here to-day to be arraigned before Judge Williams.

Bail was fixed in the sum of $5,000 each. David W. Rockmore, of New York, appeared for the defendants.

Mr. Rockmore was busily engaged this afternoon in an effort to secure bail for his clients from local real estate dealers. His efforts did not meet with much success, however, and the prisoners will probably be remanded to jail. In the mean time Mr. and Mrs. Richman are at the Woodruff House in the custody of officers.

Grand larceny was the charge against them and their accusers were Dr. and Mrs. Walter E. Delabarre, residents of New York city, who were married on Monday at the Waldorf-Astoria.

New York summer visitors to the Thousand Island resorts took the hearing. They were dumbfounded by the accusation of theft against a man who owned over half a million dollars' worth of New York realty. Under questioning by District Attorney George H. Cobb, Proprietor Crossman, of the Crossman House, an exclusive resort on Alexandria Bay, told of the events leading up to the arrest of the Richmans.

He said that on Tuesday's late afternoon train from New York Mr. and Mrs. Richman and Dr. and Mrs. Delabarre arrived at Alexandria Bay and registered at his hotel. Both were assigned rooms on the parlor floor.

The Jewels Missing.
After dinner Dr. and Mrs. Delabarre sat on the veranda. Their chairs were directly outside the window of the room where the Richmans were. When Mrs. Delabarre returned to her room she missed a small silk bag in which she carried her jewels and $427 in cash. She concluded she must have left it on her chair on the veranda. She found it there, but on opening it discovered the pearl necklace and the roll of bills missing. Mr. Crossman was notified and he sent for his attorney, John O'Leary. The lawyer brought Chief of Police De Witt and Detective Jones with him.

The detective posted himself at the door of the Richmans' room and claims he heard them whispering throughout the night. At dawn he went to an adjoining room and there declares he heard the unpacking of a trunk and the wrapping of an article in tissue paper. A bold move was decided on, and Chief De Witt, the detective and the lawyer knocked at the Richmans' door, presented what purported to be a search warrant, and went through their trunks. In the bottom of a newly packed trunk a satchel was found which contained the missing necklace wrapped in tissue paper. Meanwhile the hotel housekeeper subjected Mrs. Richman to a search and found a roll of bills containing $427 sewed in the lining of her skirt.

Mr. and Mrs. Richman vigorously protested their innocence, declaring they had no knowledge of how the necklace had been placed in their trunk. Mr. Richman asserted some one was trying to shift a crime on their shoulders.

Dr. Walter Edward Delabarre and his wife are very well known in this city. The doctor is one of the visiting surgeons of the New York Ophthalmic Hospital and is a member of numerous medical societies. His offices are in the Park View, at No. 222 Central Park South. He is a graduate of Brown University, class of '80, and of the New York Homoeopathic College and Hospital, class of '91. His first wife died five years ago, and on Monday last at the Waldorf-Astoria his marriage to Frances Freeland Hagaman took place.

Richmans Wealthy.
Louis L. Richman is a wealthy and respected merchant on the lower east side. For fifteen years he has been a wholesale dealer in mirrors at Nos. 57 and 59 Bowery, and for ten years previous his place of business was in Catharine street.

The family of grown sons and daughters are at a newly purchased home at Nos. 16 and 18 Henry street, Coney Island.

Wanted Musician with a Wife to Marry Her and Fainted in Court When Discharged—Won Magistrate's Sympathy

Hugo Luttich, a musician, of No. 31 West One Hundred and Twelfth street, was a complainant in the Harlem Court to-day against Alena Federlein, thirty-two years old, of No. 100 West One Hundred and Thirtieth street, whom he accused of threatening to kill him because he refused to marry her, which he said he could not do because he has a wife.

Miss Federlein said in her defense that she and Luttich had been "keeping company" for ten years, and that although he was married he had promised to get a divorce and that she had given him money for the purpose.

She admitted that she had gone to Luttich's house and threatened to kill him unless he married her, for she said she still loved him.

After hearing details on both sides Magistrate Zeller said:

"I believe this woman is telling the truth. She is discharged."

Addressing Luttich he added:

"I don't think you are any good, for I think you raised this woman's hopes and then threw her over."
